The same | Spectator. man who confides to you with pride his successes with ladies who believe that money is the sinews of love as well as war will blueb and seem halfashamed of himself as he tells you of his approaching marriage. Possibly club life has a good deal to answer for in this respect. Young men of an unsentimental turn find that they can be made comfortable for a small annual payment; that, practically, they can get what they would most value in domestic life without undergoing any provious sacrifice or running any risk. The result is a tone of thought which considers itself refined, at the very mement that it is most coarse and yulgar. The dread of marriage, so common among at clever, smart youths, is not to be considered, perhaps, as entirely their own fault. Time was when people married in the brlief that by so doing by sharing toils and troubles las well as enjoyments-their upward path in the world would be made pleasanter; they looked forward, say, to twenty years of work, and then to prosperity as its roward. An accurate and scientific description of the Irishman is as difficult to get at as was for a long time an accurate and scientific description of the Dodo. Even among Irish politicions it is not oney to point out a man who may be taken as a fair specimen of the Caltio element in the British Empire-not taken (as our English journals serious and comic. are too prone to take the Irish neasant) from the midst of squalor and ignorance, and held up to the scorn of this enlightened age and country, but taken with all the advantages that birth, position, and education can bestow. If we find such a man adhering firmly to the political belie's which it is the custom of some of us to consider mere Will-o'-the Wispe that lure a few headtled and untaught peacents to sure destruction, and yet, in comparison with the educated English gentleman, showing himself inferiar on the whole in no part of that graceful and dignatied intellectual completeness which we instinctively require in him, the fast ought to farnish us with grave matter for reflection, and might belo to clear up much that is dark in the causes of this unhappy. The O'Donoghue, as we have known him here in England, has shown himself to be a young man of considerable ability, and has distinguished himself from the great majority of his colless gues, the lrish members, by a grace and delicacy which is too often absent in them. He is vain, like many frishmen; he is extravognut, like most Irishmon; and he cannot avoid, as he ought most carefully to avoid the aprenson of extremes. DROFESSOR WHEELER, would respectfully attract the attention of the Hongkong Public to the importance of having the Hair Out. and Dressed in an Artistic manner and style. Appropriate to the Individual is the out of the Hair, there can be no fixed or prevaiting fashion without destroying almost universally the baris the contour of the human head and facial outline, just so peculiar should be the trim and arranges ment of the Hair. This fact is acted upon by only those Hair-Cuttors who possess an inherent udgmont in matters of tasto, cultivated and in proved by incessant study and application. Of this are class. Professor WHEELER, humbly claims to he one, and the Only One in this Colony, and he medestly but confidently invites all who may be distrustful of his ability to give him at least a trial before pronouncing an adverse opinion. He may be found at all hours of the day in his Apartments adjoining the Private Edtrance of the Oriental Hotel.
